Concept Rationale

The Design concept chosen was inspired by the tobacco plant. Many people throughout North Carolina and Greenville have had a family member involved in the tobacco industry. It has been an integral part in North Carolina's history, as well as surrounding state's history. Tobacco plants have large leaves that when dried are used in cigars and cigarettes. However, the giant leaves and their colors from vibrant greens to dried browns are what inspired the design. On the columns will be large leaves mimicking the tobacco leaves. There will also be lights inside the leaves to help brighten the space. The space is a millennial campus, which is where college students can meet with businesses about possible jobs off of campus grounds. The students can meet with people in education, industry, government, military, and other organizations as well. Included in the design will be semi-enclosed spaces that the students can present ideas to businesses, or they can use them as a private study room to better their presentations and ideas.
